You can use this handy counting sheet to record how many of each species you see in your garden.

Seen something else? Go to rspb.org.uk/birdidentifier to find out what it might be.

Great tit

Look for a black stripe down its yellow front. The males have a slightly thicker stripe than the females.

How many have you seen all at once?

Robin

Unmistakable orange breast. Some visit from the Continent in winter. You can hear its song almost any time of year.

How many have you seen all at once?

Woodpigeon

This large garden bird is mostly grey with a white patch on its neck. Often on the ground hoovering up fallen seed.

How many have you seen all at once?

Long-tailed tit

Tiny body; long tail. Known affectionately as "bumbarrels" in some parts of the country. Often in groups.

How many have you seen all at once?

Blue tit

Blue is not the only colour on this tit. Look out for yellow on its front, green on its back and white on its face too.

How many have you seen all at once?

Goldfinch

Look for the gold in its wings, but also the red on its head. More than one? A flock of goldfinches is called a charm.

How many have you seen all at once?

Greenfinch

Bigger than goldfinches, greenfinches have a chunky beak to crack seeds. Look out for green/yellow in the wings.

How many have you seen all at once?

Magpie

This large bird will feed on scraps. Look closely and you might see purples and greens in its iridescent feathers.

How many have you seen all at once?